The REOWM Model is very effective when planning and conducting coaching sessions, in leadership and when holding people accountable. It is just as effective in developing accountability based on expectations that are sometimes viewed as subjective – an agreed expectation requires accountability, whether it is tangible or intangible.